

THE COURSE

The teaching activity of the Master is divided into three parts: November - June is articulated in lectures and workshops focused on three main topics - business management and innovation languages, creativity languages, the Made in Italy model; the students are encouraged to work in teams on briefs given by our partner companies and the MBD Faculty; July - September consists of a research that each student carries out in a company or in a design studio, broadening one of the themes faced during the first part of the course; October - December the course is concluded with a final master thesis, that students will develop under the guidance of a mentor and a tutor.

THE OBJECTIVE

The Master intends to create a new managerial class for design driven companies composed of individuals able to combine creativity, managerial skills and entrepreneurial spirit. Its goal is also to provide tools to tackle complex social conditions, globalization and the spread of new economic production systems.

THE AUDIENCE

New graduates and young professionals coming from economics, human science and design-related faculties, who wish to learn how to combine creativity, managerial skills and entrepreneurial spirit through a multidisciplinary approach.

THE FUTURE

MBD participants will develop skills and competences that will enable them to achieve different high-level managerial positions in many sectors like fashion, design, luxury goods, food, leisure, tourism, consumer goods, media, consultancy and ICT.

COMPANIES/INSTITUTIONS

MBD's mainstay is its strong relationship with a network of companies and enterprises, actively and directly participating in the students' training, with an integrated contribution through scholarships, lectures and presentations of case histories, as well as planning together with the Faculty the themes of the teaching organization and the issues to develop design workshops.
